The Tree Circus

Pages: 424
ISBN: 978-602-291-409-9
Dimension: 13 x 20,5 cm

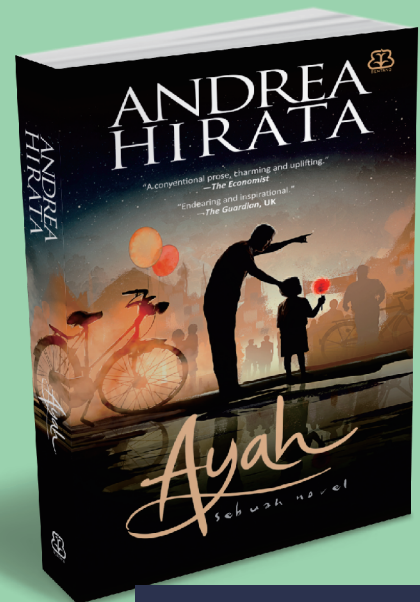

Alright, Pal. Let me tell you about my battle against a pomegranate tree in my backyard and how it got me arrested.

I really hate that tree. I mean, just take a look at it! That tree looks like it's being cursed. The trunk is bumpy, the branches are droop, the twigs are awkward, the bark is wrinkled, the leaves are tangled. Every Thursday night the crows are crying on top of it, calling the reaper. I don't want to get any closer around that tree because I know it is inhabited by ghost.

In this novel, Andrea will make us laugh out loud with the stories of innocent Melayu people in the heartland of Belitong, sob with the sad love story, or amazed with their extraordinary intrigues. We will find imperfect people, but also find the wisdom in them.

Father

Sabari loves Zorro very much. He wants to hug him all the time. He was stunned by that tiny beautiful creature and all of the kindness which radiate from him. He kisses that boy from head to his little toes. Every night Sabari couldn't sleep, thinking about various plans he want to do in the future with his son when he grow up. He wants to take him to the parade on the independence day, take him to the festivals, buy him toys, take him to the mosque, teach him fasting and reciting qur'an, and give him a ride to the city park.

Now Alamanda founded Binar Academy, an affordable and free of tuition school to bring her vision-- evolving education world and forming digital ecosystem in Indonesia-- into reality. Binar Academy aims to create good quality of Indonesian digital generation and best Indonesian coder.

Through this book, we are invited to see inside the mind of Alamanda. Her opinion about life and about herself who diligently spreads the importance of collaboration

Dear Tomorrow

Guilty as charged.

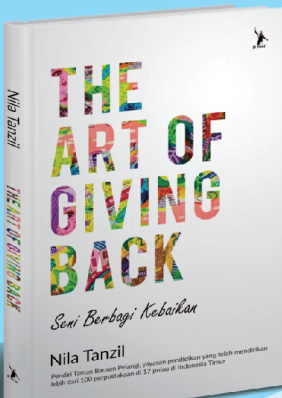

I am one of those people who adore witty quotes and phrases. I love being reminded by simple truths. I love how short statements can strike a chord in our minds and move us to do something. This book is a compilation of my experiences, thoughts, and conversations with myself on love, dreams, and life. All throughout this book, I curated takeaways—things that I want to be reminded of in the future. Saving it for all my tomorrows.

If anything I write here can make you smile—or think, then I've done what I wanted through writing this book.

Love,
Maudy

The Art of Giving Back

Nila Tanzil used to be a corporate worker. Now she is known as the founder of Taman Bacaan Pelangi - an educational foundation which built more than 100 children libraries in 17 islands in east Indonesia, gave more than 200.000 books to more than 30.000 children and gave workshop to more than 1.000 teachers in rural areas.

Nila channeled her life experience into what she called as The Art of Giving Back, an art to celebrate gratitude through giving. Her freestyle narrative feels warm, yet able to tackle the self - “generous” side. It will remind us to the writing of Ajahn Brahm and Gobind Vashdev.

Mothers Union Comic

Synopsis

"Welcome to the jungle!"

When I gave birth, some friends congratulated me with such speech. It sounded funny at first, but it became terrifying after I experienced it.

Becoming a mother is not something big, but it consists of daily struggles and small achievements. Thus, I put these daily moments into this book.

I wish this comic can be a small step so mothers won't feel lonely while struggling. It's okay for a mother wanting more vacation, feeling tired, that her diet fails, then looking ridiculous once in a while, and that it's okay for her to appear imperfect. Because there's no way to be a perfect mother. But there are so many many many ways to be a fun(ny) one! :)
